Night Fighter Pilots Ready To Repel Nazis

By HAROLD DINGMAN
LONDON, May 28.—(AP)—Great Britain's cat-eyed night fighter pilots are ready to do their part in repelling any German invasion attempt on the British Isles.

Last night President Roosevelt warned that Germany will have to ensure Britain first before ing much further in the Nazi program of world conquest. I have visited Britain's famous night fighters, and find them confident any miasma night air attempt can be met.

REACHING OBJECTIVE

The group captain at the leading night fighter base told me: "If we shoot down 10 per cent of the bombers we will have solved the problem. If the Hun sends 500 bombers and we knock down 50, we know that another 20 groups of planes won't get home. That's 20 planes' worth of loss."

He said that the group captain added: "Hitler couldn't keep that up indefinitely."

The group captain added that the R.A.F. was prepared to achieve this in 10 per cent every night, but making rapid progress toward the objective. "We hope soon to knock down a sufficient number to make Hitler sit up and take notice."

He said that the R.A.F. was not just justified because of the recent record. The Hun concentrated on night attacks at night and lately the large numbers of Nazi planes have been reduced."

SPECIAL PERSONNEL

The British officer recalled that the R.A.F. had defeated the Hun in September daylight raids, and since then he has been only at night. "Particular attention is being paid to the comforts of the pilot. His food, a bath and a bed awaited each pilot after a flight."

"There is an esprit de corps growing up among these newest defenders of Britain and it does not matter what periods the German leaves between their raids there are R.A.F. pilots standing by every night ready to take off."

Great Fleet of Ships Search Vast Atlantic For Bismarck's Mate

LONDON, May 28.—(CP)—Fifty to 100 British warships and a swarm of planes searched the vast Atlantic today for the 10,000-ton German cruiser Prinz Eugen, in hope of a clean sweep of the Bismarck squadron.

Into the quest was thrown much of the powerful concentration of naval forces which closed in on the Bismarck yesterday on the 50,000-ton battleship Bismarck, hounded 170 miles down the Atlantic from close to the Arctic circle, crippled, trapped, then sunk in a thunder of shellfire and torpedoes.

The Prinz Eugen, with the Bismarck last Saturday when she sank the battle cruiser Hood and damaged the new 35,000-ton Prince of Wales, had dashed for safety—perhaps back to the Norwegian coast.

Released from the cordons that caught the Bismarck, warships turned to the new hunt, aided by the British fleet.

German planes dropped from sight by Monday morning when a Catalina flying boat picked up the fleeing Bismarck 550 miles west of Landed End, England.

Following planes quickly took up a patrol off the Norwegian coast to spot the Prinz Eugen if she had turned back there.

Released from the cordons that caught the Bismarck, warships turned to the new hunt, aided by the British fleet.

Man Succumbs To Injuries After Mishap

Kenneth Fraser, 31, of 11812 St. Street, died in the Royal Alexandra hospital at 10 a.m. Wednesday from severe head injuries sustained when struck by car at 118 avenue and 58 street at 11 p.m. Tuesday.

An inquest will open at Howard and McBride Ltd. funeral directors, 10 a.m. Thursday. After identification of the body the hearing will be adjourned until a later date.

It was announced by Det. William McDonald, coroner's officer, that Fraser had, in addition to head injuries, severe internal injuries and broken limbs.

He was an operator for the Canadian National Telephone.

According to city police reports Fraser jumped into the path of a southbound automobile driven by Gordon Coleman, 11823 95 street. It is said that Coleman had just passed a southbound street car and had swung to the left to avoid another auto that pulled out suddenly from the curb when he struck Fraser.

The driver, Ed Constable Stanton and his wife, who investigated that Fraser seemed to "jump" in front of his car.

The victim was struck by the left headlight and fender.

The accident occurred between 116 and 117 avenue.

CALLS ABUNDANCE
A car accident happened for a Jack Hay's ambulance as soon as he stopped his car and also searched for a doctor, who was looking for one. Henry Curly, 12317 91 street.

United States Will Resist Nazi Efforts At Sea Domination

President Proclaims State Of "Unlimited National Emergency"—Gives Strong Outline Of Foreign Policy

By J. F. SANDERSON

WASHINGTON, May 28.—(CP)—President Roosevelt Tuesday night proclaimed the existence of an "unlimited national emergency," declared that the United States would do whatever was necessary to assure the safe delivery of supplies in Britain and asserted that it would "actively resist" any effort by Hitler to gain control of the seas.

In a history-making broadcast carried to the far corners of the world, the president clarified American foreign policy beyond doubt.

He announced that "all additional measures necessary to deliver the goods" to Britain will be taken and warned

Use Armed Forces To Repel Attack

Bluntly he accused Hitler and his Axis partners of an intent to conquer the world and "strangle the United States of America and the Dominion of Canada," asserted the war was "coming very close to home," and warned that "we will not hesitate to use our armed forces to repel attack."

These things, together with a reassertion of "the ancient doctrine of freedom of the seas," were included in his long-awaited "fireside chat," delivered from the glittering east room of the White House, before the entire diplomatic corps of the western hemisphere. Among them was Leighton McCarthy of Canada.

Chinese Busy Building Their End Of Projected Railway Line To Burma

Will Be More Than 700 Miles Long, When
And If Completed—Supply Line
From the Sea

Following is the fifth and last of a series of articles by A. T. Steele in which he describes the appalling border town towns that have sprung up along the Burma Road—EDITOR.

By A. T. STEELE

KUNMING, Southwest China (By Clipper)—(CIN)—The Chinese scheme for a railway from Burma to China, more or less paralleling the Burma road, has been called by some an idle dream. It is no idle dream to the Chinese. For two years, in the face of crushing discouragements and a serious shortage of materials, they have been working spasmodically on the project. Recently, they were given new hope when the British government announced its decision to begin construction immediately on the short Burma link between Lashio and the Chinese border.

The Chinese have long since completed surveys for their end of the railway and have laid down much of the roadbed for a distance of 200 miles west from Kunming. Already a few kilometers of track have been put down from Kunming to the Chinese border. It is expected that in the end of the year at least 30 miles of the railway will be fully completed.

Traveling along the Burma Road, which runs side by side with the projected railway for nearly half its length, I noted that the roadwork was so far along that tunnels and bridges were being completed. It is taking the ingenuity of the Chinese to build a railway without having a large quantity of steel. Bridges which would be made ordinarily of steel are constructed of concrete and timber, of which there is plenty.

WORKING WITH SPEED
When the British decision was announced, Chinese workers were dispatched immediately to the Burma frontier to begin construction of the Chinese section of the road. With great speed they are cutting their way through the gorge of the Nan Kuan river, which carries a fine and straight current from the highlands to the crest of the Yunnan plateau.

The railway, when and if completed, will be more than 700 miles long, including the 100-mile Burma section from Lashio to the border at Kunming. It will connect the railway from Rangoon to Lashio and so give China a 1,000-mile supply line to Kunming from the sea.

The Chinese are faithfully urging the British to complete their end of the railway with all possible dispatch, especially within the next two years. If it can be done, until the Burma section is finished it will be difficult or impossible for the Chinese to take delivery of rails and heavy equipment for the work they are building. By the time the Burma portion is done the Chinese hope to have much of the work completed, tunneling and bridge work completed, and to be ready to begin the final push to the sea.

DEADLY SERIOUS
This seems like a vain wish, especially when one considers that no more than a voluntary effort on the part of the Chinese is being made to complete the railway so far as they are concerned. But it is so vain? The Chinese are shown by building the road in amazingly short time what wonders can be accomplished with vast resources of human labor and their command. They are deadly serious about the Burma road, and they are working under the urgent, direct orders of Gen. Chiang Kai-shek.

War Services Pensions Act Is Broadened

OTTAWA, May 28.—(C.P.)—Amendments to pension legislation, bringing it into line for application to the present conflict, brought general approval from members of the House of Commons Tuesday, with some criticism for certain details.

The amendments, which were passed in committee at the evening sitting, and the bill now stands for third reading at the next sitting of the House.

The amendments then turned to a bill to control interprovincial export of game introduced some time ago by Hon. Minister Cooper to prevent evasions of provincial laws for the hunting of game.

There was one outstanding exception when John Blackmore of Ontario, premier of the province, introduced a "cavalry pension" and a "suspension of pension" for Canadian soldiers at sea.

Mr. Blackmore repeated the criticism he directed at the amendments when they were first introduced in the House early this year.

He charged the government had failed in providing pensions for soldiers of the First Great War, and that the same failure was being repeated in the present legislation.

There was an argument that Canada's resources were sufficient to provide a reasonable standard of compensation for the war veterans, and that the government was not credit frequently advocated by the group he led in parliament.

PENSION LEGISLATION
The amendments to pension legislation, contained in a bill introduced early this session which has been passed by the House, will be possible to maintain the "Monroe Doctrine."

Up until now, he said, the British had been maintaining the "Monroe Doctrine" in the Caribbean.

Text Of Proclamation By U. S. President

WASHINGTON, May 28.—(AP)—Following is the text of a presidential proclamation, as announced on Sept. 1, because of the outbreak of war in Europe, a proclamation was issued declaring a limited national emergency and directing measures "for the better defense of the United States and for the national defense within the limits of power conferred by the Constitution."

Whereas a succession of events makes plain that the objectives of the Axis belligerents in the present war are not confined to those aimed at its commencement, but that they extend throughout the world of existing democratic nations, and a world-wide coalition of peoples and economies through the destruction of the Axis powers on land and sea and in the air, and

Whereas indifference on the part of the United States to the increasing menace would be perilous, and common prudence requires that the security of this nation and of the hemisphere be maintained from present authorizations of military strength to such a basis as to enable us to repel the threat of aggression, and the establishment of any such basis as to repel the threat of aggression by foreign powers into our territory and waters.

"UNLIMITED EMERGENCY"
Now, therefore, I, Franklin D. Roosevelt, president of the United States of America, do proclaim that an unlimited national emergency exists, and I hereby declare that the national defense requires that the national defense be maintained from present authorizations of military strength to such a basis as to enable us to repel the threat of aggression, and the establishment of any such basis as to repel the threat of aggression by foreign powers into our territory and waters.

CO-OPERATION OF LEADERS
I call upon loyal state and local leaders and officials to co-operate with the civilian defense agencies in the maintenance of the national internal security against foreign-directed subversion and to put every effort into the maintenance of a productive effort and minimum of waste in the production of war materials.

I call upon all loyal citizens to place the nation's needs first in their minds and to do so in a way that we may mobilize and have ready for instant defense all our resources, and to do so in a way that we may mobilize and have ready for instant defense all our resources, and to do so in a way that we may mobilize and have ready for instant defense all our resources.

In witness whereof I have hereunto set my hand and caused the seal of the United States to be affixed.

Done at the city of Washington, this twenty-eighth day of May, in the year of our Lord nineteen hundred and forty-one.

Mr. Green, who criticized the amendments, which provided a "First Great War pensioner obtaining pension for children of the war" of the House.

In reply to questions Mr. Mackenzie said there had been 12,784 deaths from the services since the war started as medically unfit and 687 had been granted pensions. There had been 238 pensions granted dependents.

Blackmore, recalling the address he made at the time of the Prime Minister, the late Sir Lloyd George, who had been "diagnosed" the way the plagues of the war were being treated.

"BREACH OF FAITH"
He declared the present provisions for pensioning those who suffered from the services in the war were a "disgraceful breach of faith."

Price Increase On Fresh Milk Is Opposed Here

Increased consumption of condensed and evaporated milk will result from further increases in fresh milk prices, the consumers' association here has said.

The policy situation is strong. Increasing demands for eggs and higher prices for meat are prevailing incentives for the raising of livestock. It is also being taken in poultry as the diversification of agriculture grows.

"THAT'S A MAN'S JOB" ISN'T HEARD IN CANADA THESE DAYS

Dominion Women Do Important Defence Work, Releasing Men For Active Service

RIGHT: In workman's shirt and overalls, Elnet Williams works in a Windsor, Ontario, factory. She assembles jacks to be installed in army trucks.

Waters of the Red Sea once rolled back to allow Moses and his followers to cross in safety, but now they ripple dangerously as U.S. ships use them to transport aid to British in Near East, despite German blockade. Some of odd-named towns on Red Sea coasts may assume historic importance if American ships are attacked there by Nazi sky or surface raiders.
